

Our Impact in 2021

The year in review

1,500
Educators Inquiring

46,000
Students Impacted

With respect and collaboration, school and district inquiry teams are leading learning for quality and equity across British Columbia.

Inquiries in Action

Focus on First Peoples Principles of Learning and embedding Indigenous understandings

95 Case Studies submitted

Expanding from school-based to school district wide teaching and learning approaches

28 BC school districts engaged

11 Indigenous transition project teams

Developing new tools and measures
to assess our actions and impact.

46,000+ students supported

Professional Learning and New Resources

875 participants engaged in NOIE sponsored learning events

20+ NOIE Network Leaders presented at global conferences

Our first fully online NOIE Symposium

Launch of the new NOIE Learning Bursts

Creation of the NOIE Learning Tour Study Guide

Growing International NOIE networks in Australia, Sweden, Catalunya and England

2022 Coming Up

A new cohort of 33 NOIE Indigenous Transitions Project school and district teams.

Over 100 inquiry plans submitted by schools across BC.

New funding to support Indigenous learners in math, literacy and oracy.

New resources focusing on themes of student leadership and learning in place.

New book Leading Through Spirals of Inquiry.

www.noie.ca
@noie_bc

We gratefully acknowledge the Irving K Barber Learning Centre at UBC, the Vancouver Foundation, the Power to Give, and the BC Ministry of Education for their generous financial support, and the BCPVPA through their publication of Spirals of Inquiry.